

Arnie Streland

Senior Director Strategy and Business Development at Northrop Grumman

31 years' experience in program management and systems engineering of national security space systems. Led cross functional highly selective technical / management teams to design, produce, and deliver national priority space, intelligence and command and control systems. Senior business development professional with strategy and business development responsibilities for Air Force Space & Missile Systems Center (SMC), NASA Jet Propulsion Lab (JPL), Air Force Research Lab, aerospace industry vendors, partners and clients in western United States and aerospace industry vendors, partners, and business opportunities in the Pacific and Asia region. Led 400 person unit with 2100 member contractor team deploying and sustaining integrated space situational awareness and counter space programs to ensure space support to joint operations world-wide. Develops long-range architectures guiding $4.5B DoD investment portfolio decisions to counter emerging threats. National Space Club General Bernard Schriever Award for Excellence in Space Acquisition. Space Superiority Systems Directorate recognized as SMC's Program Office of the Year. Current DoD TOP SECRET SCI clearance